If the gore in Final Destination isn't sufficiently horrifying for fans of the genre, they might want to check out Penance. This prime example of torture-porn was inspired by an Australian gynecologist responsible for hundreds of cases of genital mutilation and sexual assault on female patients. Jake Kennedy's movie locates the clinical dungeon in southern California and makes all of the victims strippers, natch. Kennedy's conceit requires that a hand-held camera follow the strippers from bachelor parties to a forced audition in front of the doctor (Graham McTavish) and his stern, Taser-touting female assistant. Will the girls escape? Will the doctor be caught? What is the star of Henry: Portrait of a Serial Killer doing here? Stay tuned. The package includes deleted scenes; a far-too-detailed making-of featurette; stripper lessons; an anatomy of a scene; and interviews. The scream queens, led by Marieh Delfino, are all pretty hot.
