Under the Turban

Cinema Libre Studio

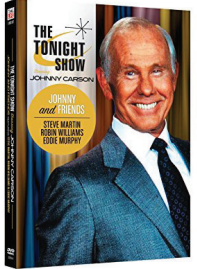

Winner of the Best Picture at the World Film Festival in 2017, check out Under the Turban (DVD), an interesting piece of cinema starring Zara Garcha (Actor) and beautifully orchestrated by Director Satinder Garcha. What makes me a Sikh? That question posed by nine-year-old Zara Garcha starts a family's journey to learn about their religion. The Garcha family explores Sikhism by visiting diverse Sikh communities around the world. Meeting with a Maharaja's, cheesemakers, fashionistas, farmers, and scholars to glean a better understanding of the world's fifth largest religion. Their journey begins in Parma where they meet Sikhs who have a hand in creating Italy's iconic Parmesan cheese. From there, the Garchas head east traveling to India visiting The Golden Temple in Sikhism's most holy city, and learning about the historical foundations and social history of the religion. As their travels continue their lived experience blends with academic insight as we see how the region and culture has manifested itself throughout the world.

Monster Hunt

Arrow

Fun for the entire family and a new fantasy adventure unlike any other from the animator of Shrek and Madagascar comes the masterpiece Monster Hunt (DVD)! Now Monster Hunt, The New English Language Version! In an ancient world, monsters rule the land while humans keep to their own kingdom. But when cute baby monster Wuba is born to a human father and the monster queen, humans and creatures alike set out to capture the newborn, and Wuba's adventure begins. "Monster Hunt" smashed box office records in China to become one of the highest grossing movies of all time.

The Bird with the Crystal Plumage

Arrow

The Bird With The Crystal Plumage (2-Disc Limited Edition Blu-ray+DVD) is a vintage thriller by master director Dario Argento that will keep you spellbound until the last frame of this newly refurbished print and gorgeous packaging and includes Limited Edition Content! In 1970, young first-time director Dario Argento (Deep Red, Suspiria) made his indelible mark on Italian cinema with The Bird With The Crystal Plumage, a film which redefined the 'giallo' genre of murder-mystery thrillers, and then propelled him to international stardom. Sam Dalmas (Tony Musante), an American writer living in Rome, inadvertently witnesses a brutal attack on a woman (Eva Renzi) in a modern art gallery. Powerless to help, he grows increasingly obsessed with the incident. Convinced that something he saw that night holds the key to identifying the maniac terrorizing Rome, he launches his own investigation parallel to that of the police, heedless of the danger to both himself and his girlfriend Giulia (Suzy Kendall)! A staggering assured debut, The Bird With The Crystal Plumage establishes the key traits that would define Argento's filmography, including lavish visuals and a flare for wildly inventive, brutal scenes of violence. With sumptuous cinematography by Vittorio Storaro (Apocalypse Now) and a seductive score by legendary composer Ennio Morricone (Once Upon a Time in the West), this landmark film has never looked or sounded better in this new, 4K-restored, Arrow Video! EXTRAS: New audio commentary by Troy Howarth, author of So Deadly, So Perverse: 50 Years of Italian Giallo Films, The Power of Perception, a new visual essay on the cinema of Dario Argento by Alexandra Heller-Nicholas, author of Devil's Advocates: Suspiria and Rape-Revenge Films: A Critical Study, New analysis of the film by critic Kat Ellinger, Reversible sleeve featuring original and newly commissioned artwork by Candice Tripp, Limited edition 60-page booklet illustrated by Matthew Griffin, featuring an appreciation of the film by Michael Mackenzie, and new writing by Howard Hughes and Jack Seabrook, Plus other features and 6 Lobby Card Reproductions!

Spider-Man: Homecoming

★★★. PG-13. 133 Minutes. Sony Pictures.

Spider-Man: Homecoming is an accurate portrayal and the best Spider-Flick since 2004's Spider-Man 2, this one finds star Tom Holland justifying the hero's goodwill as the new Peter Parker/Spider-Man, he's an enjoyment on the big screen! Directed by Jon Watts, he takes us to the original concept of Spidey and casts an appropriate actor much the age we read about in the comic books.

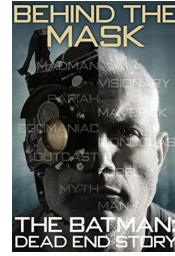

A plus for this move after six movies, three different lead actors and two boots! The film has already generated $117,015,000 at the Box Office! There is abundant charisma found in this special Spider-Man: Homecoming because it is authenticated by the creator and trademark of Stan Lee, and although Iron Man is involved along with plenty of troubles in the world, (the villain here is Adrian Toomes, aka The Vulture. As Toomes, Michael Keaton's performance is outstanding as the individual who allowed the big, bad world to decompose his soul) this film seems more realistic because it also centers around Peter's taxing school days to boot! There are no spider web cover ups in this film or the script! This film is best seen in IMAX 3-D! It is sad our local parish cinema doesn't support 3-D screenings?

Behind The Mask: Batman Dead End Story

Candy Factory

Behind The Mask: Batman Dead End Story (DVD) presents two legendary Halo Players who seek to reclaim greatness at any cost in this dramedy set against the backdrop of the pro gaming world that stars Sandy Collora (Actor) and Directed by Eric Dow in this game changer revelation! In 2003, award-winning commercial director, Sandy Collora set out to make a short film. He wound up making history. 'Batman:

Dead End' wowed Batman and Predator fans alike at the San Diego Comic Con that same year and became one of the most talked about and downloaded short films ever made. Presenting Batman in a way he'd never been seen before - a dark, brooding, creature of the night straight out of the comic books squaring off against the Predator in a dark alley somewhere in Gotham City - every fan boy's dream. Shot over the course of 4 days in North Hollywood, CA, the film became an overnight sensation, putting Collora in front of some of the biggest names in Hollywood. Chronicling the trials and tribulations of Collora, through the phalanx of studio executives, producers, actors, writers, managers, and agents, trying to get his first feature film off the ground, director Eric S. Dow takes us on a startling and heartwarming journey about an artist with a dream - an artist who never quit. A polarizing figure, Collora explains first hand through interviews and archive footage what happened and more importantly what didn't happen in the wake of this magic, little 8-minute short film, that in the words of Batman actor, Clark Bartram, "Shook up the world...!"
