Therapy? – A Brief Crack of Light (Blast Records)

Yeah, so these guys are radio friendly. They're on an independent label, but let's hope they get to the radio, because they have something to show to those guys. A big plus here: THERAPY? was not content to just turn out the same song ten times. Each tune surprises with its own spin, yet always it sounds like the same band. That's musical identity meets diversity. The hard rock here is indeed mainstream, but there's an artful playfulness reminiscent in a less all-over-the-map way than early Incubus (though that was some great shit, I'm not detracting). The guitar riffs are always interesting, bolstered by cunning rhythmic from drums and bass. Vocally, this is also a solid release. The vox are clean – and sharp! And the melodies! Heaviness is often driven well by beauty, and it's no different here. If you wanna hear what SHOULD be among all that radio crap, you're in need of THERAPY? ... !
