

Volume 35/Number 163
April 1, 2011
MIDWEST RECORD |
www.midwestrecord.com

VIDEO SERVICE CORP

COLIN QUINN/Long Story Short: Quinn and Dennis Miller are both from Saturday Night Live, are both managed by Brillstein Entertainment and both can take a deep breath and peel through a story. Miller's rants have become decidedly Republican while Quinn's rants are great everyman/everyday guy pissed off observations. Throwing every inch of his New York Irish look and delivery into the pot, this is the best common man stuff since Gerry Sussman wrote "The Tales of Bernie X" (you've got Google, look it up). A 75 minute show directed by Jerry Seinfeld, comedy is in good hands here and this laugh riot will have you hitting the pause button to catch your breath and digest the reference before moving on more times than you can imagine. It was originally made for HBO and they generally never let you down with these kind of comedy specials. Laugh it up.

CHRIS SPECTOR, Editor and Publisher
Copyright 2012 Midwest Record