

« DVD Review: The New WorldDVD Review: Bob Dylan 1978 – 1989 »

DVD Review: Little River Band – Live Exposure

It is said that on October 7, 1981 a concert that took place in the Summit in Houston, Texas was especially magical. The Little River Band performed and even by their own standards it was magnificent as shown in this film.

The recording is 75 minutes long and the indelible melodies and soaring harmonies which highlights the concert are typical of a group whose approach to hit songwriting and performing have earned them a solid worldwide following.

The selections chosen for the concert features music from Little River Band's six albums with each of them spotlighting the polished vocals and dazzling musicianship which are the ultimate heart behind their best-loved material. The Little River Band challenges and uplifts with this brilliantly filmed celebration of great music.

The list of songs featured includes:

- It's a Long Way There
- Man On Your Mind
- Mistress of Mine
- Happy Anniversary
- Don't let the Meedle Win
- Reminiscing
- Ballerina
- Cool Change
- The Night Owls
- Help is On Its Way
- Lonesome Loser
- It's Not a Wonder Lady
- Just Say That You Love Me

The music in the concert along with their selection of songs performed is great and it certainly says a lot for The Little River Band about the talent they had.

If you would like to purchase Little River Band – Live Exposure just click on the icon at the top of this article.

Jan Barrett

Privacy Information

Listen To Elvis Presley

Get The Free Music Toolbar & Listen To 1,000s of Songs & More!

Music.alot.com

It's Happy Bunny

Find great deals and save! Compare products, prices & stores

www.Shopping.com

Ads by Google

December 31st, 2009 | Category: DVD, Music, Reviews