

BooJi Boy's Basement - The Devolved Archives

Q: BOOJI BOY'S BASEMENT?
A: THE DEVOLVED ARCHIVE

NewsAboutRulesAudioVideo
ForumExclusivesContactMailing ListLinks

Greetings, Beautiful Mutants! And how may we be of service?

Oh, No! It's the DEVOtional! Time Out for Fun - 2005

Click here to find out more information!

News

8/27/2005

Alex got his promo copy of the 'Live 1980' DVD! Check out the in-depth review.

8/23/2005

Well, the DEVOtional has come and gone, and it was a rousing success! This was the first-ever DEVOtional to actually turn a profit! The money will be used primarily as seed money for DEVOtional 2006, but it will also be used to upgrade the server for this website. Soon, you'll all be able to experience MP3 samples of the audio discs, get printable cover art for both CDs and DVDs and be able to chat on our brand new forum!

For those who weren't there and are curious, head over to our DEVOtional page for a point-by-point recap of the event this year. It was written by me (Alex), and I played with the Spudboys this year!

8/3/2005

Hey! We're not dead! How about that.

First, I should explain why there hasn't been an update in about three months. Rich is hard at work designing a new backend for the website so us monkeys over here can update this beast with a lot more ease. This is great, because seeing as how we all have lives aside from this, easier updates means more updates. We've got a good bit of stuff piled up that we're gonna post about very soon. Not to mention some brand-new DVD distributors that will make it much easier for European spuds to get their DVD fix.

Now, most importantly, the DEVOfional has been updated with a lot of new, pertinent information. You can purchase reserve tickets now! Check it totally out.

Also, with any luck, we'll have recording of most, if not all, of the upcoming shows on this tour so be sure to stay tuned to this space to see if the show you saw becomes a part of the collection!

5/2/2005

We've got a bit more news concernig the DEVOfional. We have re-confirmed the art show taking place, and that information has been re-posted with the new dates.

In addition to that, Michael Pilmer has delievered some truly fine t-shirt designs for us.

Head on over to the DEVOfional page to read all about it!

4/27/2005

The DEVOfional is back on! We're rescheduled for August 20th, just a week after our previous plans!

And did you know that Bob1 had a band in 1991/1992? Neither did we. Check out the far-too-seldomly-visited Exclusives section to find out more. We even have one of their shows!

4/25/2005

The Bit Torrent downloads are out of comission for a while. They'll be back ASAP.

4/23/2005

It's torrent time again! This week, we've got the Desi-DEVO mini-gig and the totally awesome first disc of unreleased demos. Also, keep an eye out for an update on the DEVOfional's status soon.

4/18/2005

The DEVOfional has been postponed!

I'm sorry to say that we have no choice to but postpone the DEVOfional at this point. I was just informed by Michael Pilmer that the Washington DC concert dates (August 13 & 14) are in fact confirmed and, as Michael put it, "What could be worse than 30 DEVO fans sitting at a fan convention when DEVO is playing a show?"

Once we know the absolutely finalized dates of the tour (the whole tour), we'll figure out how to go about it. It could simply be a few weeks after the original date or a few months, we don't know.

If you've made donations and would like it back, email Alex and it'll be done ASAP.

4/13/2005

After a sort-of extended absence, the Bit Torrent download is back again. This week, we've got a NuTra show from Pittsburgh. Great stuff here.

Also, we've got a bit of a discount at a certain hotel for the DEVOfional, so be sure to check that out. The event is going to be a total blast.

Last, but certainly not least, you may have noticed that DEVO has scheduled an array of live dates, and one just happens to be in NYC shortly before the DEVOfional and Mark's art opening in Kent. Keep your fingers crossed...

4/2/2005

April Fool's Mutatos! Hope I didn't scare you! The Basement is safe and sound.

3/27/2005

Oodles of new stuff for you here tonight, spuds. First of all, and most importantly, there is a BIG update about the DEVOfional that you really should read.

Secondly, we have added three new CDs to the Shows section. They're three unique soundboard mixes of the Orange County Fair 2003 show, excellent stuff.

And finally, we have four new DVDs available. Check those out and enjoy!

3/23/2005

Boy, do we ever have updates tonight!

First off, because you're expecting is, the new Bit Torrent download is up. This week, we bring you a classic show from The Crypt in 1977. Definitely check this one out, it's important to have.

Secondly, we've got a new DVD. It's Devo live at the Cabaret Metro in Chicago, IL on November 3, 1988. You'll see this on eBay a lot, but don't get ripped off! Get it here for free!

Last, but not least, the interviews section of our audio selection has begun its re-emergence. To start it off with a kick, we bring you two interviews done specifically for the Basement. The first is with Mark Mothersbaugh, during which time he rants about how the CD killed pop music and also gushes wisdom about some very interesting topics. The second is an interview with the seldomly-interviewed David Kendrick. This interview is a must-have. Did you know that almost all of the drum tracks on Total Devo and Smooth Noodle Maps were acoustic? And, just for good measure, we've also got a neat little interview with Dr. Demento from 1979.

Enjoy!

3/17/2005

Like some slightly delayed clockwork, the new Bit Torrent download is available. This time around, we bring you the infamous Techno Devo show. Also, we apologize for the delay of the DEVOfional news, we're working some kinks out.

3/8/2005

New Bit Torrent download is up. This week, it's one of the shows from Dallas in 1979. Great recording and an awesome show. Also, keep an eye out for some DEVOfional sometime in the next couple days.

3/1/2005

This week's Bit Torrent download is up. It's Devo's Sundance Film Festival gig from January of 1996. We are also re-posting the Life Aquatic score torrent since a few people missed it the first time. Enjoy!

2/21/2005

The new and completely free Bit Torrent download is up. This time, we bring you Devo's classic New Year's Eve performance of 1979. Also, we've got a really cool brand-spaking-new DVD to be had.

2/12/2005

Added two upgrades on some classic shows.

2/10/2005

Four new shows have been added for trade, along with one new Mark Mothersbaugh disc.

2/9/2005

We now have a PayPal account set up to receive donations for Devotional 2005. Please see the Devotional 2005 page for more information. Any contribution at all would be immensely appreciated.

2/7/2005

Spuds and spudesses, welcome to the new Booji Boy's Basement! The site's been totally revamped and revised. Not only is the site new, so is the host. We're now graciously hosted by SansPoint. That's not all. The new design is, for those who care, 100% XHTML 1.0 and CSS2 Valid.

Oh, yeah. We've also got a bunch of new stuff, including an interview with Bob 1. We've got new discs of stuff for your consumption purposes. The video section has begun its rebirth. Stay tuned, because it's only going to get better around here. We've got a lot of tricks up our collective sleeve and who knows what's going to pop up next! Duty Now for the Future, spuds!

Content © 2005 Booji Boy's Basement
Written by Alex Brunelle. Designed by Rich Anderson.
