DVD REVIEW

DWARVES – FUCK YOU UP AND GET LIVE

Review by Mark Jason Murray

While The Dwarves aren't as spectacular and obnoxious as they were back around their "Blood, Guts and Pussy" days, this live video release shows them still idiotic and in your face. Absolutely cram packed into a tiny club that looks more like a really wide hallway with no backstage area. The band has to come through the crowd from the back! Multiple cameras cut between the action as the band pounds through 19 short and speedy tracks with hardly any breaks in between.

The crowd loves it and the band isn't afraid to take a moment to shove someone off the stage and pick up right where they left off. Lead singer, Blag Dahlia, tends to get a little annoying with his constant, "Yeah. Fuck yeah" statements between every song, which is about the gist of any chatter.

The crowd is into the whole thing and random stage diving and microphone grabbing takes place. The band bounces around the stage with their notorious guitar player "He who cannot be named" hops around dressed only in a wrestling mask and speedo while another member is dressed in a hilariously cheesy white tennis outfit.

All in all, a good show with great video and audio quality. Fans of the band and old-school styled punk rock should dig it.

The disc also includes 6 music videos, most of which are fun and enjoyable.
