Pixies To Record Next Year

2006-10-26 12:11:05.397,

Story by: Katie Reedy

After previously stating they had no desire to record a new album, the Pixies have reneged on their denial and plan to "hit the studio in 2007," according to NME.com.

Prodigious frontman Frank Black told the British website that the band will work on new material in January, providing he can "persuade Kim Deal to come out of her house." Some things never change, it seems.

In other Pixies legacy-exploiting news, there will be another best-of collection released in time for the holidays. Black, however, had no kind words for the recent documentary film LoudQUIETLoud, which covers their reunion tour. Black told NME.com he believes portrays drummer-cum-magician David Lovering in a negative light. You can see for yourself when CMJ sponsors a screening of the film at the Glass Lands Gallery in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, on Nov. 9 at 9 p.m.
