loudQUIETloud: A Film About the Pixies

Watching a band break up can be as good, if not better, than a round of ultimate fighting. But watching a band get back together after a few years of estrangement is the stuff documentary filmmakers dream about. Steven Cantor and Matthew Culkin follow the cult band as it picks up the pieces and heads back on tour after more than a decade of hostility. If you thought being a Pixie looked like fun, think again. These are some of the unhappiest and most insecure people you'll ever see. Great human moments, absolute candour and excellent live performance footage.
