Europe

The Final Countdown Tour, Live in Sweden 1986 (20th Anniversary Edition) DVD

Studio: Music Video Dist.

Release Date: December 5, 2006

Europe, everyone's Swedish prog metal band from the '80s, is one of the most successful Swedish bands ever - having sold more than 10 million albums worldwide. We're positive you know the opening synthesizer riff from "The Final Countdown" - whether it's from the '86 album of the same name, football teams running onto a field at the Super Bowl or George's magic shows on Arrested Development.

And now the enthusiasm and public craving for that song is forever immortalized in a live concert recording from Solnahallen in Stockholm 1986 - now available remastered in Dolby Digital and restored in widescreen format on DVD. And with all hair jokes and high kicks aside, Europe's songwriting and guitar solos hold up well compared to power metal bands of today.

On the DVD, interviews with the band from 2006 tell the story of "The Final Countdown" recording sessions, the immediate fame from the track, and their thoughts about still having to perform it today (at State Fairs and casino shows worldwide).

Another bonus is a trip back to the Powerplay Studios where they recorded The Final Countdown album with some unbelievably droll dialog about where the drum kit was set up and which closet used to be a practice room, etc. The bonus material is a die-hard fan's dream, but the show itself will be entertaining for any metal enthusiast.
