Workhorse III

After establishing herself as one of the best, most hardcore rock guitarists around playing what's been called the "70s riff rockets sped to motorpunk velocity" in Lisa Christ Superstar, Lisa Lynn Flynn has shed her moniker, teamed back up with drummer Brian Bunker (of Lisa Christ Superstar and Bad Luck 13) and bassist Eric Perfect (Rancid Vat, Limecell) to create unholy, unstoppable power trio Workhorse III.

"Revolution Blood Machine," the first single off the eponymous debut album released on DRP Records last summer, hit No. 6 on the CMJ Loud Rock Charts and is getting on-air love nationally, including heavy metal cult radio show Full Metal Jackie. For a special Mischief Night gig at Sugar Town—the all-ladies party Lisa helped establish alongside Sara Sherr back during her days booking shows for the Troc—the Workhorse crew will grind alongside the Midnight Beat and the Tulanes. Costumes not required, but encouraged. "We'll be dressing up as the world's greatest power trio," says Flynn. "Us!" -T.M.

*9pm. $5 in costume, $7 without. With the Midnight Beat + the Tulanes Tritone, 1508 South St.
