With William Burroughs

(MVD Visual)

This film contains one of the last interviews given by the notorious and influential writer William Burroughs. This is a documentary of a festival that took place in Dublin, Ireland, in the fall of 1992. The organizers celebrated the works of Burroughs and Brion Gysin and feature the music of the Master Musicians of Joujouka, Hamri the painter of Morocco, Terry Wilson, Ira Cohen and others. There's also previously unseen footage of Burroughs in his prime during the beat eras of 50s and 60s. The nasally-voiced rambler William S. Burroughs' hallucinatory lifestyle alone is worth viewing.

Extras: Bonus scenes, music by Islamic Diggers, and interview with the director and his vision for the work.
