

PUBLIC ENEMY
The Evil Empire Of Everything/Most Of My Heroes Still Don't
Appear On No Stamp

(Enemy Records)

NO new album in five years from New York hip-hop legends Public Enemy, then two at once: they sure know how to spoil us.

And spoil us they do on these twin albums, which demonstrate that 30 years into their career, they can show young pretenders a thing or two.

Most Of My Heroes, originally an iTunes-only albums

release (what's that all about?), is just as angry, political and vital as they were in their heyday, with standout tracks such as Get Up Stand Up, 1 (PEace) and WTF?

Now it is joined by The Evil Empire... which features such cuts as Don't Give Up The Fight (feat. Ziggy Marley) and Hoovermusic.

It's good to see that PE still have something to say. 8/10 each. GW
