· Ultimate Death Match (2009) (IMD)

The Short Version: "Ultimate Bore Match."

The Slightly-Elongated Version: After a wrestler keels over dead during a pay-per-view match, his employer finds himself in a lot of hot water. This does not stop him, however, from concocting an Internet-based "fight to the death" match, wherein he promises his worldwide audience that someone will die in the ring. A very cheap shot-on-video flick featuring several "real" wrestlers (wait, isn't that an oxymoron?) that, for some inexplicable reason, has a sequel being released. The DVD's selection of extras consists of two trailers for other budgetary-challenged home video releases.

· Slave (2009) (Phase 4 Films)

The Short Version: No, it's not the story of Prince's infamous tattoo. Although that would have probably been far more interesting to see.

The Slightly-Elongated Version: It just doesn't pay to be a tourist anymore, at least in the eyes of budgeted filmmakers. Witness the tragic plight of Georgie (Natassia Malthe), who gets kidnapped whilst vacationing with her beau in Spain, and forced to be a shipboard sex slave by an evil Middle Eastern-y fellow (for some reason, the line "Oh, rip the shirt! How cliché!" from Cheech & Chong's Greatest Hit just popped in my head). Her beau (played by TV's Sam Page) decides to track her down (hey, Harrison Ford did it way better than you could ever hope to do, buddy). The IMDb claims this is a remake of a 2005 film entitled Wish You Were Here, but since both movies have the same cast and crew, I'd say this is a re-release of the original flick. But then, I'm not going out of my way to validate that, either.

The Chainsaw Sally Show: Season One (2009) (Troma Team Video)

The Short Version: Exactly what network was this aired on?

The Slightly-Elongated Version: There's an old saying: "Don't fuck with the librarian." If you're looking for a reason why, then check out The Chainsaw Sally Show: Season One. Inspired by the 2004 SOV cult classic Chainsaw Sally, April Monique Burril (the obsession of low-budget horror-loving trolls everywhere) returns as the demented serial killer who is employed as a librarian by day, and hunts down and butchers those who cross her path at work during her off-time. The set includes 11 blood-soaked episodes and more bonus materials than any non-fan would ever dream could possibly exist. Herschell Gordon Lewis was executive producer for the series.
