This badly dubbed Italian horror movie is being sold like it's some sort of holy grail of cinema that's been lovingly restored to preserve its place in film history. Don't believe the hype. This low budget gore fest tells the story of a group of cave climbers who discover a weird blue rock that turns out to be the hiding place of a bloodthirsty alien. The effects are wonderfully bad, especially the red paint they splatter around for blood, but the acting and script are just too awful. 2 stars
