

BOREDOM. REDEFINED.

"Movies aren't just entertainment. Movies are magic. The ticket to other worlds, past lives, and future generations."

Welcome to the newest edition of the Musical Whorehouse. This site has nothing to do with music or whores (except for the music and whores in film). Instead, it is a list of films, television shows, and everything else that I have watched starting sometime in April 2009.

I have a sometimes normal but often bizarre taste when it comes to cinema. I will watch pretty much anything, regardless of genre or public opinion. Generally though, I enjoy the dark side of filmmaking. I love horror, exploitation and all that jazz. My viewing habits tend to be eclectic and very fucking random.

I generally try to write funny and goofy reviews, but sometimes I'm lazy or at a loss for words (I'm no professional writer), so I'll get straight to the point. Hopefully you'll discover some films you've never heard of, or maybe you'll decide that you need to add Cannibal Holocaust to your DVD collection. Or maybe even Porno Holocaust. Either way, I'm just one man with an opinion, so try not to hate me too much.

Inbred Redneck Vampires (2004)

Inbred Redneck Vampires (2004)

Comments: I have a definite weakness for low budget shit titles that I find at Saturday Matinee (like Night of the Pumpkin and Blitzkrieg: Escape from Stalag 69). Inbred Redneck Vampires definitely fits in with these films. It's made on a budget of about four beers and contains some of the worst acting I've ever seen. Unfortunately, unlike the other two films I mentioned, there's not enough gratuitous violence and nudity (except for an extremely large woman) to really make Inbred Redneck Vampires truly entertaining. But it actually is funny at times, and there's an extremely angry midget named Cletus that's awesome. With more of an exploitation vibe, this could have been a classic (relatively speaking).
