

"With no-holds-barred runs at bean gobbling, beer drinking and the bodily functions that result, the gross-out factor is high...an effective low-brow pre-fab cult flick with...an infectious sense of fun." - Film Threat

"Quite frankly this is one of the most enjoyable micro-budget films I've seen in a long, long time...the entire cast is amazing...nearly stealing the show is Bill Bradford as the redneck dwarf Cletus. I can't praise Bill Bradford enough. Director Joe Sherlock has the knack for keeping the jokes flowing and the action moving." - Chip Lamey of Video Crypt

"Once I started laughing I couldn't stop because the movie just kept coming. I laughed so hard we had to pause the movie until I could breath again. ..You really have to listen but the dialogue is pretty unbelievable! Not only that, but the movie looks great. Camera angles were excellent and so was the lighting and sound. The head-squishing scene has got to be one of my favorites...This movie doesn't have one single socially redeemable quality and it's a great movie! I can't remember the last time I laughed quite this hard...I highly recommend this movie to anyone who's into movie's with a non PC theme. Be warned that if you offend easily this is not the movie for you!" - Wren Leach of Monsters At Play

"This movie is great! No, really I mean it. The humor is the lowest common denominator type, which always makes me laugh. Adding to the comedy is the character of Cletus, who looks like a three foot corn dog without the stick. He manages to steal every scene he's in. The women are either the big giant mamas you come to expect from rural life or they're the hot teen age daughter type that are very easy on the eyes. This one is definitely a winner and something not to miss when checking out the video shelves." - Douglas A. Waltz for Cult Cuts

"The acting is well-done on the part of the entire cast with the outrageous Felicia Pandolfi stealing the show...Don't miss the vomitous and totally slapstick cameo by actor Jeff Dylan Graham as Lonnie Bob-Joe...a downright funny movie...Get this flick, damn you." - Baal-Peor from Screaming Stoner Video

"Just watched the flick and LOVED it. Oh man it looks SWEEEEET!" - Chris Seaver, Low Budget Pictures

"Goofy, lighthearted and low-budget, the huge cast seems to enjoy the process of making a film, but the result is mainly for fans of campy horror." - The Portland Oregonian

"Joe Sherlock's team-up with fellow director Michael Hegg spawned Bloodsucking Redneck Vampires, a raucous romp through many stereotypes and genre conventions...be warned that lots of baked beans are enjoyed, in all the ways baked beans can be enjoyed, and that strip poker is played with an alarmingly obese woman dubbed "One-Eyed Lurlene." - John Oak Dalton for MicroCinemaScene

"If you're a fan of B movies that push the boundaries of taste and conventional aesthetics, then this is the movie for you." - David Walker for Willamette Week

"Most of the gags are cheap and involve flatulence, boobs, midgets, extremely obese people, homosexuals and, of course, rednecks...there's a fair amount of nudity, including some of the biggest breasts you'd never (and yes, I do mean never) want to see." - Bob Ignizio for Utter Trash
