Recap: Comic-Con 2010

Thursday night was especially fun since I got to moderate my first panel, and not surprisingly it had to do with zombies. Nine artists who had worked on “Night of the Living Dead: Reanimated” came out to talk about what can best be described as an animated, mixed media, mash-up homage to George A. Romero’s seminal zombie film.

It was a full house (but we lost a lot of people who had to go home on the trolley), and everyone walked away with swag. Plus the artists had not met before so this was like a meet and greet for them, and now they want to work together on the next animated project called “Unseen Horror” (old radio shows will provide the audio basis for this project). It was a great night and the die-hard folks who stayed till almost midnight expressed appreciation for the work done by the animators.
