Paul McCartney is Really Dead Movie Too Easy to Prove a Hoax: The Last Testament of George Harrison a Fraud

A new movie called Paul McCartney is Dead: The Last Testament of George Harrison is a fun look at the Paul is dead rumors but nothing more. True Beatles fan will quickly see the mistakes Highway 61 Entertainment and director Joel Gilbert make very quickly on in the movie, besides the fact the voice they claim is George Harrison's sounds nothing like Dark Horse.

The basis of the film comes from the Paul is Really Dead Web site:

In the summer of 2005, a package arrived at the Hollywood offices of Highway 61 Entertainment from London with no return address.

Inside were two mini-cassette audio tapes dated December 30, 1999 and labeled The Last Testament of George Harrison.

A voice eerily similar to Harrison's tells a shocking story: Paul McCartney was killed in a car crash in November of 1966 and replaced with a double!

British intelligence, MI5, had forced the Beatles to cover up McCartney's death to prevent mass suicides of Beatle fans. However, the remaining Beatles tried to signal fans with clues on album covers and in songs.

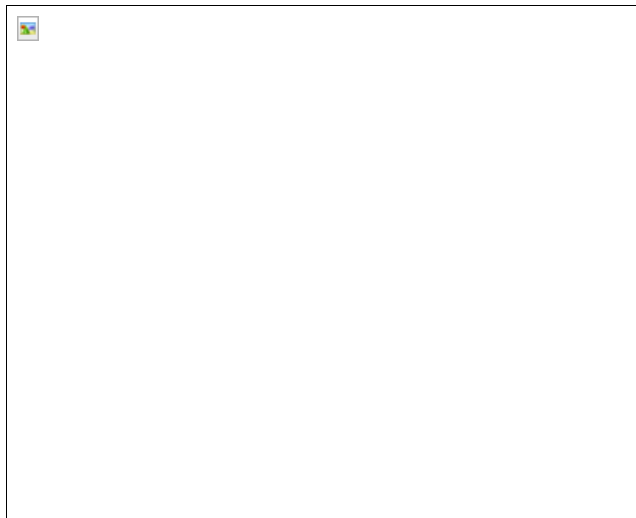

Until now, the "Paul is Dead" mystery that exploded worldwide in 1969 was considered a hoax. However, in this film, the mysterious voice on the tapes reveals a secret Beatles history, chronicling McCartney's fatal accident, the cover up, dozens of unknown clues, and a dangerous cat and mouse game with "Maxwell," the Beatles' MI5 handler, as John Lennon became increasingly reckless with the secret. The voice also claims that Lennon was assassinated in 1980 after he threatened to finally expose "Paul McCartney" as an imposter!

Highway 61 Entertainment has investigated this stunning new account of the conspiracy to hide McCartney's tragic death and produced this unauthorized documentary that includes newly unearthed evidence. The mysterious voice on the audio tapes narrates the entire film in what may prove to be the most important document in rock and roll history, leaving little doubt that PAUL MCCARTNEY REALLY IS DEAD!

Fans will quickly lose interest in this very idea of an MI5 conspiracy based on simple chronology that most true Beatles fans will quickly point out. If Paul died in November 1966, there would be no possible way to put death clues in the covers and lyrics of Rubber Soul, which was released December 3, 1965, Yesterday and Today (an American LP on Capitol Records) released June 20, 1966, and Revolver released August 5, 1966. As well, the movie lists the chronological order of these releases as Rubber Soul, Revolver, and Yesterday and Today. While the recording was supposedly made shortly after George was stabbed at his home, he recalls too many details in the recording to make these obvious mistakes.

Either Gilbert didn't do his research or there wasn't enough death clues to fill up the 90 minutes to make this a full length film. I believe fans will have had enough as he tries to conclude Yesterday is also full of death clues. Yesterday was released before Rubber Soul on the Help! album in the UK. Further proof Gilbert didn't do his homework.

Still, the Paul is dead clues have fascinated me for decades, as a symbolic side to this feeling of evil surrounding the Beatles that some fans feel but often ignore. I mean after all, the Beatles loved to put backwards messages in their later work, including the infamous turn me on dead man from Revolution 9 on the White Album.

And of course this from the White Album as well--Paul is dead, miss him, miss him.

So it appears the Paul is dead death clues, even though the facts have been poorly presented in the movie, are alive for another generation of Beatles fans to debate.

I find it offensive that the deaths of John Lennon, George Harrison and Linda Mc Cartney are trivialized by these ridiculous theories-even if they are presented as a spoof. How does crap like this get made?
