Paul McCartney Really Is Dead; The Last Testament of George Harrison
2010
Highway 61 Entertainment

Did McCartney really die in a car crash? Was he replaced by a double by MI:5? Maybe. We'll probably never know if McCartney is Paul or Faul, but this documentary brings a lot of unanswered questions to the surface. I had heard rumors of this "conspiracy theory" but had no idea that so much "evidence" actually existed. I'll admit to being a skeptic before watching this documentary. After watching this documentary I do believe that it is possible that McCartney really did die in a car crash in 1966.

The commentary is taken word for word from the supposed audio tapes of George Harrison, which were recorded before his death in 2001. In late 1999, Harrison survived a knife attack by an intruder in his home and, while recovering in the hospital, recorded what he thought would be his last testament. Thankfully Harrison survived, but lived in seclusion for most of the remaining 2 years of his life.

The documentray is very well put together. Harrison's narations are colorful in detail and illustrated by various live footage of The Beatles and images of album covers and band photo shoots.
