The Best of Soul Train

Back in the '70s Soul Train was, without a doubt, the coolest show on television, bringing the hottest R&B, soul and funk acts into living rooms across the country. This three-disc set sports over five hours of the best and brightest in the music biz from Sly and the Family Stone and Marvin Gaye to The Temptations and Stevie Wonder.

Paul McCartney Really is Dead

This one's definitely a curiosity. Supposedly Paul McCartney Really is Dead is a documentary based on a couple of cassettes that Beatle George Harrison sent to production company Highway 61 Entertainment explaining that the rumors of McCartney's death and replacement by a look-a-like actually did happen in the mid '60s. The doc claims to be narrated by those Harrison tapes and even surmises that John Lennon might have been killed to keep the secret. Sounds like a lot of hokum to us, but we're always up for another movie about the Beatles, even a crazy one like this. Definitely a rental, but might be good for a laugh or conspiracy buffs.
