Paul McCartney

"Sir" James Paul McCartney played bass guitar and sang for the most influential band in the history of music. They were called The Beatles. He was the first to leave the group and launch a solo career that has been not surprisingly... [\[more\]](#)

After being stabbed in his home, did George Harrison record two cassette tapes explaining why two of the Beatles had now been subjected to violent acts? I don't think so, but when you hear the reason why in the movie, Paul McCartney is Really Dead: The Last Testament of George Harrison, it's as much fun as Everyday Chemistry.

There seems to be a lot of people hoping to profit from reexamining the Paul McCartney is dead death clues. Remember, The Lennon Prophecy, which did a very good job of making the case the death clues had nothing to do with Paul, and were actually clues that John Lennon sold his soul to the devil for 20 years of Fame and Fortune in a Faustian like tale. Many of the clues Joseph Niezgoda cites were creepy to say the least. For instance, the picture of Lennon in Magical Mystery Tour has a sign next to him that reads, "The Best Way to Go is by MD&C." Those of course are the initial of Mark David Chapman, who killed Lennon outside of his Dakota apartment building in New York City. There are other clues Niezgoda points out that makes his case far more believable than Paul McCartney is Really Dead.

The movie is narrated by a man who claims to be George Harrison; although I didn't think it sounded like George at all. It explains how Paul McCartney died in a car crash (he blew his mind out in a car, from a Day in the Life) and the British government was afraid teenagers would start committing suicide if they found out. The voice claims the three surviving Beatles lived in fear with this information, and that Lennon was about to go public with it on December 1, 1980. A week later he died.

The voice also claims Harrison finally couldn't handle the guilt, and he too was about to go public. This led to the stabbing incident in his home.

All this movie does is open the yummy death clues that were hidden in the album covers, the songs, and in backwards masking in a different fictional account. No harm done, and really quite interesting even though you know it's not Harrison on the tape. It's always fun to go back and look at the Paul is dead clues, but I am very sure that I saw Paul in 1993 on his New World Tour. I am very sure Sir Paul McCartney is alive and well with some really bad plastic surgery these days. It wasn't William Campbell who transitioned into playing the role of Paul with plastic surgery himself. Maybe I will go ask George's sister Louise. She lives 30 minutes from here, and is always an enjoyable chat.
