

GG Allin and the AIDS Brigade, Live in Boston 1989 DVD (MVD Visual): You know you can't lose watching this DVD of punk rock's most beloved rodeo clown from the safety of your own comfy couch. Those of you who tend to get your P.C. panties in a twist easily might want to skip this one, but for those of us who think GG Allin is the funniest thing since E Talk Daily, this is pure comedy gold. Extras include shows from Portland and Seattle in '93, with the main feature being filmed in Boston in '89—which, coincidentally, was just after yours truly saw "Gigi" at Foufounes's Shock Art Festival in '88. At said fest, I was lucky enough to witness a post-show, art-slumming vernissage-hopper testifying about GG "bearing his charred black soul," being "a product of our own darkest recesses," "a modern-day Rimbaud," blah blah blah. After spouting off her stream of horseshit, she turned on her heel, revealing a nugget of GG's still-fresh babyshit caking the back of her designer leather jacket. Thanks for the memories, Geeg!
