Kylie: Rare and Unseen (MVD Visual), the Kylie Minogue installment from the Rare and Unseen Collection, features nonstop interviews with the "21st-century Aphrodite," as well as rare footage such as British TV interviews from the 1980s, 90s and 00s, her first-ever TV appearance, and much more. In the unseen category, the DVD contains an Australian interview with Kylie at 21, the newly restored Ghost Train children's show, and press interviews, among other thrilling bits.

Michael Feinstein's American Songbook (PBS), the three-part series that originally aired on PBS, is now available in a double-DVD set. Out performer, musical historian and archivist Feinstein guides viewers through a celebration and exploration of 20th-century popular music. The three hour-long episodes on the first disc span the 1920s through the 60s, while the second disc of bonus material includes Feinstein performance footage and archival material with Judy Garland, Duke Ellington, and others. What is especially noteworthy about the series is the way it balances historical information and footage with the more personal aspect of Feinstein's own story (including his relationship with husband Terrence Flannery) and concert performances.

Michael Jackson's Vision (Epic/Legacy) Over the course of 40 music videos, including a handful of short films, spread out across three DVDs, Michael Jackson's legion of fans can watch his development and domination as the unparalleled King of Pop videos (as well as the change in his appearance). From simple, early productions such as "Don't Stop Til You Get Enough" and "She's Out of My Life" to storyboarded groundbreakers including "Billie Jean" and "Beat It" to mini-epics such as "Thriller" (directed by John Landis) and "Bad" (directed by Martin Scorsese and featuring Wesley Snipes) to special-effects breakthroughs "Black and White," "Scream" and "Ghosts," choreography spectacles "Smooth Criminal," "The Way You Make Me Feel" and "Remember the Time," and the Ryan White tribute "Gone Too Soon," Jackson's vision comes through. A third bonus-disc features three Jacksons videos, the Paul McCartney duet "Say Say Say," the previously unreleased "One More Chance," and more.

The Judy Garland Show (Classic World/Infinity) Volume 4 of The Judy Garland Show, Garland's short-lived, acclaimed, early-1960s variety series, features two complete episodes, with guest stars grand dame Ethel Merman, comedian Shelley Berman, crooner Vic Damone, triple-threat Chita Rivera and comic Louis Nye. The two episodes on Volume 5 include performances by the legendary Steve Allen, the "Velvet Fog" himself Mel Torme, Jayne Meadows and the dynamic Diahann Carroll.

Masters of American Music: Sarah Vaughan – The Divine One (EuroArts) Part of the award-winning Masters of American Music Series, Sarah Vaughan – The Divine One features Billy Eckstine and Marty Paich as well as Vaughan's daughter Paris and her mother Ada, and includes her performances of "Someone To Watch Over Me," "I've Got a Crush on You," "Misty," "Send in the Clowns," and more.
