Basically this devil worship rocker girl gets kicked out of her band for being a satanist and killing her fans after the show. Then she gets killed by her drummer, then they get a new singer, and the new singer drinks the dead singers blood, and becomes evil too. She freaks out and takes her clothes off, then kills some fans, then goes on "huge" world tour that takes place in some guys living room? Oh and I suspect the blonde singer, the one who takes the place of the first one, I think I saw her in some porno from the 80's, but I can't place her, maybe it's just a resemblance, but she looks very familiar for some reason. Anyone seen this movie? If so what did you think of it? I laughed at the ineptness of it, but I must say I enjoyed the film. Robots do it better!

Would you recommend it as a blind buy? "The weakness of hope is the strength of decline." - Katatonía "I Break"   DVD Profiler Collection  Invelos Profile  My Space  Devil Doll

Yes it's the Donald Farmer movie. I got the DVD for $6.50, at that price I definitely feel it's worth it. I wouldn't spend a lot on it though, as the DVD qauality is strictly VHS, in fact I think the movie was filmed on VHS it looks like. This movie reminds me of a modern day Ed Wood movie, not well made or acted, but strangely interesting and one I'm glad I saw. As long as a movie doesn't bore me I usually like it, and this one never got boring, but then again it only runs like 69 minutes. Good thing though that they didn't try and stretch it to 90 minutes.

Thanks for the info. I might bite, it sounds like my cup of tea and I do like Melissa Moore. At least the DVD can be had cheap!
