

Search

- Home
- featured
- interviews
- reviews
- listening party
- adventures & rants

- Posts
- Comments

The Dwarves – Born Again (Deluxe Edition)

By

T Frankenstein

Published: June 3, 2011 Posted in: cds, featured, movies, reviews Tags: drugs, dungles, dwarves, electric guitars, midgets, religious awakenings, sluts, sweater puppies, wangs

The Dwarves are one of those punk bands that have been doing what they do for so long that at this point you'd be hard pressed to find someone who hasn't at least heard of them (at the TSOL show I went to last night I saw no less than two Dwarves shirts in the crowd if that's any gauge). If you're not familiar though, think The Meatmen, Turbonegro, AC/DC, early Queers... basically bands that rock hard and with front-men that don't mind playing the role of the asshole. Blag in fact revels in it. Punk rock is sometimes about just telling the rest of society to fuck off. Sometimes it's about doing it with high satire, sometimes it's a legitimate fuck you. The Dwarves kinda straddle the line between hating you cause you suck and hating you cause it's funny. At this point in their career you'd think they'd have slowed down a little... mellowed out... lost their libidos. But this is the era of Viagra for chrissakes (I mean at least according to my SPAM folder), and The Dwarves are still hungry for the womenz... or well... sluts to be more specific. From "Blood Guts and Pussy" to "Born Again", not a whole heck of a lot has changed for these guys, but that's not a bad thing either cause theres not many bands out there still doing what they do.

The song titles on this one speak for themselves. The likes of We Only Came To Get High, Your Girl's Mom, Happy Birthday Suicide, and The Band That Wouldn't Die say more than any one review can. If you want high brow songs with deep meanings you might want to look elsewhere. If you just want to rock out and have a good time then "Born Again" is your jam. The Deluxe Edition also comes with a DVD filled with all kinds of old and new live footage, music videos, interviews, dicks, and boobs. Actually about ten minutes into watching this thing I had to pull the shades in my living room cause I didn't want anyone walking by to look in and catch a glimpse of HeWhoCannotBeNamed's wangus jiggling round my TV set. Probably also good that I had the shades closed when one of the classy lasses in one of their videos started doing various XRated things with the camera firmly planted on her nether-regions. So um, yeah don't put this one on for the family at Thanksgiving or anything. Unless of course you're a godless psychopath or just have a really cool liberal grandma that likes watching puds flap about on stage and women with frontal wedgies.

And finally as if you needed any more reason to get this one there's a midget on the cover. Not exactly an original idea for this band, but when you got a good thing going sometimes you know when not to stop.

Popularity: 2% [?]

2 Comments

1. TYhe Dwarves

Posted June 3, 2011 at 2:37 PM

Wow, these guys are really good looking!

2. bobby dingbat

Posted June 3, 2011 at 2:52 PM

the midget's not half bad neither!

Say Something!

Name (required)

Mail (will not be published) (required)

Website

Submit Comment

- Archives

- For A Good Time

Contact Frankenstein

- Who Is

This Is

- Anti-Social Networking

Copyright

Copyright Frankenstein Sound System. All Rights Reserved.