

Emerson Lake and Palmer 40th Anniversary Reunion Concert

Watching this DVD brought me back to my college days where great quantities of alcohol were consumed and we would discuss the important issues of the day, like who is the best band ELP or Yes. We would go round and round for hours deep into the night never really coming up with a conclusion but the exercise seemed to entertain us.

If this was part of your college routine then you will enjoy this DVD. ELP come back for a 40th anniversary concert and prove that they can still put it out there like they did originally in the seventies. A little older, perhaps but the musicianship cannot be denied. Keith Emerson, still has those keyboard chops although I long for his original Moog synth, Carl Palmer is a fantastic drummer and Greg Lake proves that his voice has not lost anything.

The band leads you through a set of their classics the average or even hard core fan will not be disappointed. Although there has been a backlash to the old progressive rock error, these 3 men prove that they can do it right and when it is done right it is awesome.

AMP

(Alex Pepiak of GUITAR DIGEST)