The Original House of the Damned / Lust For Vengeance dvd

Track Listing:

Rating: 4 stars!

I decided to lump these 2 reviews together simply because they were both created by the same guy, Mr. Sean Weathers.

The Original House of the Damned is a weird movie that's basic premise is a little hard to follow at times BUT people are killed, then return as zombies & there's a curse that has to be broken in order for them to be saved...the interesting footnote about this movie is that it was filmed in one house & the principal shooting was all done in the same location.

The film work is a bit patchy at times but for a B-Horror movie I think it was done pretty decent & there are a few spots here & there that are so campy you will laugh..all in all The Original House of the Damned was a fun watch.

Lust for Vengeance was a bit over the top, it was filmed with a theme that's called Giallo & the way it's set up it's murder, sex, mystery & intrigue...I'll tell you upfront there's quite a few graphic sex scenes & sadly they are with people that I wish I'd NEVER had seen have sex! lol

The actors are ok, the plot is there, but this movie is a bit much at times & I preferred "House of the Damned" to "Lust" simply because the Giallo styled movie wasn't to my liking.

As a complete body of work I give Sean credit, these are 2 interesting horror/slasher movies fo sho!
