

House of the Damned (1996) (Full Circle Filmworks)

No, it's not the 1963 film of the same name. Nor is it the 1996 Roger Corman production of the same name. Instead, it's the other House of the Damned from 1996: the very first cheapo horror film from Sean Weathers — the same feller who brought us the aforementioned atrocity Lust for Vengeance. Aren't you excited? Unlike his previously referenced magnum dopus, this shot-on-video black-and-white urban nightmare has an actual storyline — not to mention a better video transfer. The film is also marginally better than Lust for Vengeance, though I can't say that makes it worth viewing — unless you enjoy this sort of thing, of course.

Read more: <http://blogcritics.org/video/article/slash-and-earn-six-really-cheapo/page-2/#ixzz1tpT4FEhV>

<http://blogcritics.org/video/article/slash-and-earn-six-really-cheapo/page-2/>