MESSAGE

Irony, Power corrupts

CONCEPT

A group of hookers revolt against their greedy pimps.

WHY IS THIS MOVIE RELEVANT?

With the satirical, erotic, urban, crime thriller "Hookers in Revolt," loosely inspired by "Animal Farm." Sean Weathers does for George Orwell what Stanley Kubrick did for Anthony Burgess with "A Clockwork Orange."

CONTEXT

After auditioning thousands of actresses through his many years in the business, Sean Weathers felt he had met them all. So with this film everything became an allegory for something else. Hookers [actresses], revolt [film], Cleopatra [Sean Weathers], pimps [friends, agents, boyfriends, family members of the actresses] etc...

SIMILAR MOVIES

The Black Gestapo, Black Mama White Mama, Coffy, Sin City, The Switchblade Sisters, Showgirls, Faster Pussycat...Kill! Kill!

PLOT SUMMARY

Tired of mistreatment from the hands of their pimps, a group of hookers ban together to start their own escort agency under the credo, "all women are equal to men." But as the money quickly comes in, the hoes in charge become corrupt from their newfound power and the hookers soon learn that, "all women are equal to men, however some are more equal than others..."

Sex was their tool, money their desire, and corruption their doom. Were these wanton's to blame for their own down fall, or was it simply human nature?

They thought following one of their own would make things better, but she saw them as nothing more than pawns in a game of chess.

To her they were all pawns in her game of chess, and she was ready to call checkmate.

PRODUCTION NOTES

In the summer of 2006, Sean Weathers set out to complete his 4th film, "Women on Top." An allegorical satire inspired in part by the book "Animal Farm" & in part by his experiences & interactions with some of the over 300 actresses he would eventually audition for the film. His ambitious endeavor would call for almost 20 principal roles with an equal amount of extras. His decision to shoot the group scenes & the police station scene on the first day, after not shooting in years, almost cost him the film. He would have to overcome a cast revolt, immediately followed by a crew revolt (prompting him to rename the film). The day ended with Weathers firing 3 cast members, nearly being arrested & almost losing his entire cast & crew, however he would persevere to not only finish the film, but also star in it as well.

TRIVIA

- The film is an allegorical satire inspired in part by the book, Animal Farm and part by the director Sean Weathers experiences and interactions with some of the over 300 actresses he would eventually audition for the film.
- Africa, Betty and Ginger are all one character in the script.
- Weathers placed real VOYEURISM ESCORTS AGENCY ads in several adult magazines for the opening sequence.

THEMES

Mind Games
 Woman In Jeopardy
 Resistance Movement
 Police Brutality
 Rise To Power
 Prostitutes

MOTIFS

THE SPEECHES - are used to reflect the movement of the revolt, forward the storyline and show the manipulative, Machiavellian rise to power of Cleopatra.

WOMENISM - The hookers heartily embrace Delilah's visionary ideal of womenism, but after she dies, Cleo gradually twists the meaning of her words. As a result, the other hookers seem unable to oppose her without also opposing the ideals of the rebellion. By the end, after Jezebel's repeated re-configurations of the 7 Commandments in order to decriminalize Cleo's treacheries, the main principle of the revolt can be openly stated as "all women are equal to men, however some are more equal than others." This outrageous abuse of the word "equal" and of the ideal of equality in general typifies Cleo's method, which becomes increasingly audacious as the film progresses.

SYMBOLS

MONEY - in one form or another is the motive for all of the characters and their actions. It is visually shown throughout the film, it is also implied several times via brown envelopes.

TOPE

Confrontational

MOODS

Tense, Angry, Harsh, Bleak, Cynical, Sexual, Lurid, Campy, Gritty, Visceral, Satirical, Quirky, Irreverent, Racy

MAJOR CONFLICT

There is an all out battle for the money being earned on the streets by the hookers.

OPENING IMAGE

Sex shops in Times Square, Manhattan, NY.

EXPOSITION/PROLOGUE

Contains 3 scenes foreshadowing major events, the first is a montage of Voyeurism Escorts ads. Then Emanuelle shortly before overdosing, and the first half of the last scene, involving Cleo's inner-circle bickering.

RISING ACTION

Delilah's speech - she talks about the need for the hookers to revolt. We also see the tension between the hookers, pimps and cops and by the end of the scene Delilah is killed by Cleo, laying the groundwork for her future conflict with the hookers and Coco.

CLIMAX

Cleo calls Simmons and gives him the go, to kill Coco and pay off Skip Peters, getting rid of her competition and putting a politician on her payroll. Then in a speech to the hookers she declares autonomy over the revolt.

FALLING ACTION

After her thoroughbred Emanuelle, dies of a drug overdose. Cleo reestablishes her power by killing Crystal, the last hoe with any guts to stand up to her, then making the remainder of her disillusioned cattle work harder than ever before.

DÉNOUEMENT/EPILOGUE

Picking up where the prologue finished, Cleo reveals her plans of world domination to her inner-circle.
