review by

Mike Haberfelner

Basically, already shot scenes from three abandoned film projects by Sean Weathers, from circa 2003 or 2004, some accompanied by commentary by Sean Weathers and long-time partner-in-crime Aswad Issa:

- The Erotic Adventures of Samson and Delilah: Two sex scenes, despite the biblical title obviously shot in some modern day apartment. The actors in this look rather awkward and seem to feel uncomfortable regarding having (fake) sex in front of a camera. And the camerawork, that almost invariably puts some object between the actors and the camera to create a voyeuristic feeling doesn't really make sense. Even Sean Weathers agrees.
- Gangz vs Cult: This was a project straight from Weathers' heart, a gangmovie that gradually shifts into death cult territory. The scenes for this actually look pretty decent and promising (in a low budget sort of way), but for some reason, the film was not to be.
- Escape from Bloodbath Island: This was to be a slasher about a sextet of young people stranded on a desert island, and killed off one by one. Some of the stuff film looks promising but the problems were manifold, from terrible actors to people not showing up on set to uncharged camera batteries to a model airplane field right next to the location deeming most of the sound unusable. Now the concept of this film was good. but there were just too many hurdles to be overcome.
