

"Omnibus" was the Golden Age of Television's most distinguished production, a multiple Emmy- and Peabody Award-winning series delivering sophistication, refinement, and sparkling intelligence to a national audience. Its eight groundbreaking seasons -- broadcast live and nationwide from 1952 to 1961 over 164 episodes -- of live, commercial-network broadcasts featured host Alastair Cooke and the most accomplished luminaries of the day, and garnered more than 13 million viewers per program and 65 awards. This historic two-DVD collection features the centerpiece of "Omnibus" inaugural season: the ambitious five-part biographical drama of the 16th president by renowned author, screenwriter and film critic James Agee and starring Royal Dano and Joanne Woodward. $34.98 from Entertainment One ... "The Story of Film: An Odyssey": (2012) Filmmaker Mark Cousins covers 120 years of the world of cinema in 15 one-hour segments, filmed on four continents in over six years, and featuring interviews with legendary filmmakers and actors such as Gus Van Sant, Lars Von Trier, Kyoko Kagawa, Claire Denis, Robert Towne, and many more. The documentary covers famous moments in film -- the birth of Hollywood and the great movie genres, the evolution of movie stardom, the shock of the French "New Wave," the revolution of digital cinema, and much more. From Music Box Films ... "Eclipse Series 37: When Horror Came to Shochiku" is a four-disc set with four certifiably batty, low-budget fantasies from Japan's Shochiku studio -- tales haunted by watery ghosts, plagued by angry insects, and stalked by aliens -- including one in the form of a giant chicken-lizard. Shochiku's outrageous and oozy horror period shows a studio leaping into the unknown, even if only for one brief, bloody moment. The films: "The X From Outer Space" (1967), "Goke, Body Snatcher From Hell" (1968), "The Living Skeleton" (1968) and "Genocide" (1968); from The Criterion Collection ... "Zorro" (1975 -- Italy/France) is the official, complete English-language version of this international Spaghetti Western-type production that transports Zorro to South America for exciting sword fights and romance. Unlike its more violent Spaghetti prototypes, this outing is more family friendly, with colorful costumes and light humor -- but there is a stupendous 10-minute swordfight. And, best of all, it stars a still young, handsome and vibrant Alain Delon (as Zorro) and the great British actor Stanley Baker. Watch it for fun and with no preconceptions. On DVD and Blu-ray from Somerville House ... From 1963 to 1967, Danny Kaye hosted the Emmy Award-winning, top-rated television variety series on CBS, "The Danny Kaye Show." "Christmas With Danny Kaye" is a holiday DVD collection that brings together two memorable Christmas episodes in their entirety, unseen since their original 1960s network TV broadcast: The first (aired Christmas day, 1963) features the legendary Nat King Cole and Mary Tyler-Moore; and the second (Dec. 21, 1966) features Peggy Lee and Wayne Newton. From Inception Media Group.

March 2010

February 2010

Lionsgate has put together a comprehensive 10-disc set honoring Quentin Tarantino's 20 years of filmmaking, "Tarantino XX: 8-Film Blu-ray Collection," featuring eight films -- "Reservoir Dogs," "True Romance," "Pulp Fiction," "Jackie Brown," "Kill Bill Vol. 1," "Kill Bill Vol. 2," "Death Proof" and "Inglourious Basterds" -- and two discs with five hours of all-new bonus material; $119.99 ... There's two Blu-ray debuts this week: "Gypsy" (1962), starring Rosalind Russell, Natalie Wood, Ann Jillian and Karl Malden; and "Deathtrap" (1982), directed by Sidney Lumet and starring Michael Caine, Christopher Reeve and Dyan Cannon. Both are from the Warner Archive Collection.

For the Family:

Lighty Morphin Power Rangers: The Complete Series (1993-96) is a 19-disc set with all 145 original episodes from "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers" Seasons One, Two and Three, plus the 10-episode series "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: Alien Rangers," $19.99 from Shout! Factory ... "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers: Season One, Volume Two" (1993) is a three-disc set with the final 30 original episodes of Season One, $19.93 from Shout! Factory ... "Transformers Prime: Season Two" (2012) is a four-disc set with 26 episodes, $29.93 from Shout! Factory.

Stun
Subj

Special Interest:

A musical week on DVD: "Inside John Lennon (Unauthorized)" (2003) is an intimate account of the life and career of the most controversial Beatle, finally released in 2004; $9.99 from Entertainment One ... "Ike & Tina: On the Road: 71-72": (2012) By combining soul music with an explosive stage show, complete with high energy dance choreography of Tina Turner and the Ikeettes, and an ingredient rarely missed in today's soul -- gritty rock 'n' roll -- Ike & Tina Turner gained a reputation as one of the great live acts of all-time. In the early 70s, legendary rock photographer Bob Duvall and his wife Nadya toured with Ike & Tina, filming them performing, on the road, and behind the scenes. $19.98 from MVD Entertainment Group ...

The Rolling Stones Under Review 1975-1983:

The Ronnie Wood Years Part 1 (2012) is an in-depth documentary covering the career and music of the Rolling Stones between 1975 and 1983, a period that began with two unsuccessful albums and the resignation of Mick Taylor and ending with Ronnie Wood, formerly of the Faces, plugging into the group and breathing new life into the band. From MVD Entertainment Group ... "Color Me Obsessed"

(2012) is the first documentary about famed 80s indie-rock band The Replacements, told through the eyes of fans, friends, and contemporaries, from MVD Entertainment Group ... "Les Miserables: 10th Anniversary Concert Special Edition" is a newly remastered version of the 1995 DVD. The top stars from the original London and Broadway productions, along with a 150-voice chorus and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, came together for the most magical gala performance of "Les Miserables" ever produced, a 10th anniversary concert recorded at Royal Albert Hall in 1995. From BBC Worldwide Americas.

From TV to Video: