

http://www.chillertv.com/news/article/2012-02/blood_money_vol_7

Slightly less haunting (if only evidenced by its title) is Bong of the Dead, about two stoners who attempt to solve the world's burgeoning zombie epidemic by killing the undead – f'reals, of course – and turning their bodies into fertilizer to grow incredibly potent weed. Given the fact that the first title card in the online trailer features a typographical error – "A Filmmakers Struggle To Succeed" – this may or may not have been the most carefully-orchestrated $5000 horror movie production in cinema history. But writer-director Thomas Newman's self-adulation may not be entirely undeserved, given the amount of imagination displayed in early clips, making this a curiosity worth checking out, even if it may not leave you high afterward.