Film Review: Bong Of The Dead (2011)

Posted on 04/13/2012 by The Black Saint One comment

SYNOPSIS:

When the world is taken over by flesh eating zombies, best friends Tommy and [unclear] from it by turning zombies into fertilizer for growing potent weed!

The Black Saint has been known to indulge in a bit of ceremonial cannabis burn (every so often) from time to time. The medicinal attributes of the herb are well documented and the hell with it...I like the feeling I get from some good weed. It helps to kill time through some terrible movies that my truly evil editor seems to like to foist upon me. I'm going to have to light up a giant spliff as "Bong Of The Dead" began because it's hard to be able to stay awake but much to my surprise & (Relative) delight, I got a win-win situation necessary!!

"Bong Of The Dead" tells the story of a zombie outbreak that pretty much engulfs the world with the arrival of a meteor that crashes in the backyard of an old man who's just a simple man with his garden gnomes and is putting it in his backyard garden. It crashes directly behind him and he runs around with it. It cracks open and it's filled with some nasty looking goo which he gets on himself with (Never mind that the damn rock should still be as hot as hell & impossible to touch it). He feels a bit odd afterwards and goes to bed for a nap. When he wakes up, he has some disgusting boils growing out of his scalp. He pokes at one and it bursts open on his head/face.

He goes to the dinner table (Covered in blood and goo mind you) where his TV is on. She's so addicted to the TV that she never even notices what he looks like. She him. KISSES him on top of his ruptured boil covered noggin and goes right back to eating once noticing her husbands condition. He seems confused about what to do with the blood on top of his head, causing blood to drip down on his dinner which all of a sudden makes it more appetizing to him. He devours the blood covered fowl when he realizes the blood inside of her to share. So he gets up & kills her which leads to a scene in which he sits side by side in front of the TV, listening to a report about a zombie outbreak as the two men eat innards. It's a truly revolting scene but it did make me laugh out loud. The entire film is dialogue free save for some moaning from the elderly couple but it does a good job of showing the rest of the film and it is really disgusting to boot. I liked it!

After the title sequence is done, we are told that it is now “Six months later” and the two lead characters, Edwin (Mark Wynn) & Tommy (Jy Harris). Two stoners & Chong and Bill & Ted. Neither one of them is very bright nor are they especially smart. They're both quite content to smoke their lives away as the world is now broken and zombies are kept far apart from each other. Edwin has discovered that if he smashes it, crumbles it into dust & mixes it with water the end result is a type of “Super Femi” marijuana seed, makes that seed immediately grow into a super plant that produces the best high they've ever encountered and they want more. But Edwin is all out decide to take a trip into one of the forbidden sectors where zombies run free. Seeing as they are always high this probably isn't the best of ideas.

Almost immediately they're captured by the nefarious Alex (Barry Nerling) who just that is aware of his situation & isn't just a shambling hungry sack of skin. Alex has his "Army" consists of only a few zombies that don't take instructions very well. The duo's car breaks down in front of a farm inhabited by Leah (Simone Bailly) who is but still a lady underneath it all. She decides to join the guys & builds them a pit maximum carnage but just then, Alex resurfaces with a MUCH larger army of zombies looking for some payback.

“Bong Of The Dead” isn’t going to win any awards for acting or script writing at best and downright amateurish at worst (They maintain a balance somewhere (Alex and Leah respectively) fare much better but still aren’t really pushing the envelope). The film is wasted with the “Three Stooges” antics of Edwin & Tommy which is fun for a while but steadily tiresome as the film continues. But...when the blood starts flowing (We see a lot of it often) during the last 30 minutes of the film it becomes a gory delight! All of the gore is much more fun when it’s accompanied by what seem to be dozens of gallons of blood & entrails

The budget for this film is rumored to be $5000 dollars and producer/director/editor/cinematographer Thomas Newman is something of a magician. He performed a the screenplay which dwells too much on silly slapstick at times) and I'll be going against him he didn't release a halfway entertaining movie! I don't really go "Bong" to be found here) but that's of little consequence. "Bong Of The Dead" is reliance on some really bad jokes to get through it all. It combines Zombieland' Dead" and manages to score a near bullseye. And trust me when I say that the worth the wait. Hang around after the end credit sequence begins for a little som even more riotous sequel. I hope Newman gets a chance to make his sequel an grand to make it with. Man, what this guy could do with a cool million boggles my

A solid three out of five shrouds for "Bong Of The Dead". It's all been done before fresh here. Fresh like the fresh smell of blood in a slaughterhouse that is! Go local reservations it is still well worth your time.
