Clown Hunt (2010)

I cannot believe I finished my first full week of being an independent instructor at PIA; great class, great week. Couple that with it being a holiday weekend and there is a lot to look forward to as we move forward (trout season opens next weekend-woohoo). Needing something different, and more lighthearted than my usual viewing, I watched something with more laughter and happiness. Yep, clowns and more clowns in the 2010 comedy Clown Hunt!

Plot/ In a world where clowns live in the wild and are harvested, a group of men gather for their annual hunting trip. However not all is right, Albino Willie, a rare albino clown, may be hunting them.

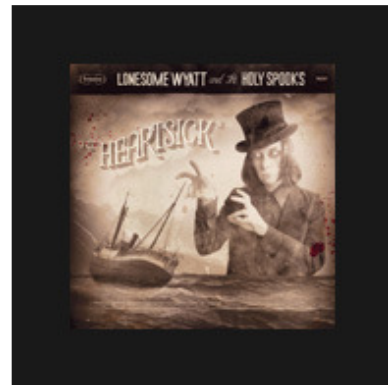

Every once in a while, movies come from left field and are so much better than anyone could imagine. That was definitely the case for this twisted comedy. Honestly, this was one of the funniest, most well written and well acted comedies I have seen in some time. Yes, there are some moments that are truly over the top (clown sex... really), but it is the seriousness of the actors that take it to a new level. Yes, the soundtrack was bad, but that is only minor. One thing is certain; unless clowns totally creep you out, you MUST see this one. Check it out!
