GG Allin & the Murder Junkies – Blood Shit and Fears \(MVD Visual\)

Regardless of what you think of him (I wonder how many articles about this artist have included a sentence like this?), GG Allin is unarguably a super major icon in punk rock. In many ways, Allin could be seen to epitomize punk rock. In the beginning and still, in its heart, punk is about iconoclasm and the everyman. It's about rock-n-roll for the masses and fuck what corporate trend setters and their teat-sucking hordes define as cool. There's no doubt that Allin's particular brand of rebellion was over-the-top, extreme and sometimes, maybe, probably, often out-and-out sociopathic. We're talking shit-flinging. Literally. (Check out the documentary "Hated in the Nation", also available from MVD). Allin and the Murder Junkies – one of SEVERAL bands with which GG performed – were fucking hellraisers. Nobody put on a live show like GG and company. No-fucking-body. So it is with excitement that I behold and announce BLOOD, SHIT AND FEARS, which features GG at his bloody work – you have to understand, combine the violence (multiplied by several factors) of old-school prof wrestling with raw punk rawk rage and you begin to have an inkling of GG. If you want more than an inkling, then this DVD is a great chance. It features footage from five different shows. Five. So grab a microphone, beat yourself in the head with it and watch this shit.
