

STANDS FOR HOUSTON

Anti-Obama film creates controversy in Galveston County

by Andrew Horansky / KHOU 11 News

khou.com

Posted on October 24, 2012 at 11:43 PM

Updated yesterday at 12:00 AM

LA MARQUE, Texas—The name of the film is “Dreams from my Real Father” and it is scheduled to be seen next week at the Texas AgriLife Center in La Marque.

The anti-President Obama movie gives a different account of his past.

The film claims his father was a communist author and his mother was a sexual predator who allegedly posed for nude pictures.

“This sheds a whole new light on a potential past that the President had,” Precinct 4 Commissioner Ken Clark said. “I think people need to know about it.”

Clark makes no secret that he is a conservative Republican and that he found the film enlightening. That is why he took a few hundred dollars from his campaign chest to schedule a private screening.

But the county's Precinct 3 Constable Derrick Rose, a Democrat, feels the choice was in poor taste.

The AgriLife building sits next to Galveston County's Wayne Johnson Center, which was named after a well-loved civil rights activist.

Speaking off camera, the constable told KHOU 11 News he would have a problem with any film shown on county property that was against a U.S. President.

He said he does not object to the commissioner's right to view the film, but said he would prefer that it be screened at a different location out of respect.