'Dreams From My Real Father' an anti-Obama DVD being mailed to voters in crucial swing states makes a host of outlandish, unsubstantiated claims. Easily the most outrageous and putrid is the claim that Obama's mother not only posed for pornographic photographs, but did so when she was pregnant. On top of THAT, the narrator in the DVD put on his best Obama impersonation to tell viewers that "mom did these photos while pregnant with me."

That's right. The video actually tries to use an Obama impersonator to imitate the President's voice and add some legitimacy to what is, at best, a wild rumor and, at worst, one of the most reviling things seen in modern American political discourse.

The following clip from The Young Turks has been gaining speed on YouTube for exposing the most ridiculous parts of the DVD. The rundown starts at about the 1:30 mark.

So, who's behind this? Right-wing filmmaker Joel Gilbert claims to have already mailed a million copies to voters in Ohio, Nevada and New Hampshire. Will it work? No, it's pretty ridiculous conspiracy nonsense. But will too many people believe it? Yes, there's always a market for fresh conspiracy nonsense.

Hopefully this is as low as it goes this election season. I'd hate to have to write a "DVD Claims Mitt Romney's Dad Blew Rock Hudson In A Mexican Spa" piece.
