In the mail was a DVD titled, "Dreams from My Real Father." Directed by Joel Gilbert, the film claims to "brilliantly expose many of the missing details and early political influences of Barak Obama in a shocking narrative."

It doesn't matter if you're a Republican who wants to believe this material or a Democrat who finds it objectionable. Everyone needs to know the facts: it's made by the same man who made a film called "Elvis Found Alive," which says it all.

To what lengths are the far-right hucksters willing to stoop? Imagine if these people took their thorazine, they might actually do something worthwhile with their money.

Fear and bountiful BS doesn't work on me, Gilbert. Please take your meds!
