Have you guys received your copy of "Dreams From My Real Father"? If you have, did you throw it in the garbage immediately? If not, did you watch and what do you think? And who is sending this video?

Here a link, <http://www.obamasrealfat...>

It appears to me from looking at the website that it was created by someone who's partway between a conspiracy theorist and a complete whack job. Many of you may remember that, just before the last presidential election there were free DVDs arriving in everyone's mailbox and maybe even with the newspaper. It was much of the same type of drivel - some far out claims made by someone who happened to hate one of the candidates and was going to do/say/claim whatever was necessary to try and convince people not to vote for them and to fear them.

If I had the time, I'd like to compose a list of all the BS and false claims and conspiracy theories I'd heard about the winning candidate before an election, then revisit that same list 4 years later to see which items were actually proven true or which ones actually happened. My guess is that there would be few checkmarks in the "actually happened" column.

Unfortunately any one, or any fringe group, can create a website or make a massive amount of relatively well produced DVDs and send them out. Doesn't mean there's much if any truth behind them.

@Paul

John Stewart had a compilation of all the things Obama was accused on being, and it's funny too. Bullst Mountain starts at 6 minutes into the video

There is actually a lot of truth to it. Have you read Obama's book? His father wrote a thesis endorsing 100% taxation, and his mentor, Frank Davis, who Obama mentions more than 20 times in his book, was a card carrying member of the Communist party. Not to mention his spiritual advisor, Rev. "God damn America" Wright. Fact check that. And remember..tell me who your friends are, and I'll tell you who you are. The guy is a radical...plain and simple, 2016, the documentary supporting the conspiracy theories against Obama, was created by Dinesh D'Souza, one of today's foremost Christian and conservative thinkers.

All I have to say is... google that name and see why he's in the news these days.

The DVD will make you nauseous. The whole thing may be bogus, but one thing remains unanswered: where is the birth certificate?

Guil M. says:

18 hours ago from Yelp for iPhone

buddy, the birth certificate was released last year by the White House.

Julio H. says:

18 hours ago

^ What? Joel Gilbert, author of the stupid DVD, claims that the birth certificate says "unknown father". I checked a copy of the birth certificate and it is printed Barack Hussein Obama. Did you check the website? What do you think of Anne Dunham?

Guil M. says:

that DVD is trash. just like all other conspiracy theories about him not being American, being a terrorist, etc.

Today Donald Trump offered to donate $5 million to Obama's favorite charity if he releases his college transcripts and passport applications. There is no way Obama will do it because he was accepted to college as an Indonesian foreign exchange student.

Paul W. says:

Donald Trump is a showman who often attempts to turn our political system into a hyped up reality TV show (not that it's far from that now, anyway) rather than allowing serious political debate and allowing serious political topics, viewpoints and stances take the headlines. While I'm not sure what the story is with Obama's transcripts and I'd personally not heard much about that conspiracy until Trump's "October surprise" (give me a break), I personally don't believe Donald Trump has any place in politics any more than a Barnum and Bailey circus show does. And yes, I'd be saying that if Donald was a dem. and shooting arrows at the republicans as well.

@ Julio, both Obama's short form and long form birth certificates have already been released. It was proven that the "faked" one the birthers were flashing around was indeed faked. Even Paul Ryan's office rejects the birther claims and when people send him mail about the birther lies and nonsense, he sends them a form letter with a copy of the birth certificates, basically disregarding their idiocy completely.

From one news source:

"Like many of his fellow congressmen, Paul Ryan has been bombarded for years with letters from conspiracy theorists who believe President Obama was somehow secretly born in Kenya and so is ineligible to be president...But unlike some in his party who have been embarrassed by their own clunky and awkward responses to the birthers, Ryan has come up with an easy solution to deal with them: He simply sends them a copy of the president's birth certificate.

In response to questions from news agencies this week, Ryan's office provided copies of the form letters his staff has used over the years to respond to questions about the president's citizenship. Polite and measured if not a little dry, the letters break the bad news to the birthers in the kindest possible terms."

You hit the nail on the head when you said "Stupid DVD", Julio. Unfortunately, some others that receive that "gift" won't be as intelligent as you and try and check the facts for themselves.
