

Stryper - Live In Indonesia At The Java Rockin Land

It is really cool for me to bands like Stryper, still carrying the flag after 30 years. The band was a solid force on Mtv and the scene until about the mid 90's, when they decided to hang up the yellow and black for awhile. The band reunited in 2003 and has been touring and releasing new material ever since. Their latest release is the DVD Live In Indonesia at the Java Rockin' Land, which was filmed in 2010, but seeing it's first release after being in the can for 2 years thanks to MVD Visual.

The set list, on this DVD, consists of 12 songs that span the band's career, primarily focusing mainly on their earlier material, as you would expect. I did like that they included material off of Murder By Pride and Reborn, because it proves that they're still writing relevant material. The DVD is shot with a film look to it. Multi camera which looks amazing. The band were on that night as well, as they are most nights. You really don't realize how good these guys are, until you witness them live, and this DVD is a great example.

Bottom Line: Stryper still looking and sounding awesome. The band bring it live and prove here on film.
