

Throwback Thursday – The Replacements “Color Me Obsessed”

Posted on September 20, 2012

I would be hard-pressed to pick a favorite band in the entire world, but if I was, The Replacements would definitely be in the running. I consider myself very lucky to have caught them on their All Shook Down tour, and have seen a few solo Paul Westerberg shows as well.

The Replacements were a glorious mess: raw and uncompromising with some of the strongest songwriting to come out of the late '80's. Most likely everyone you are listening to today has been influenced by them in one way or another.

So I was all kinds of thrilled when Consequence of Sound announced that The Replacements documentary, “Color Me Obsessed” has a dvd release date of November 20th. Already preordered my copy!

Watch the trailer for “Color Me Obsessed” and preorder it from Amazon.

The Replacements “Merry Go Round”