

Colin gets his teeth into horror role

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT 8 NOV 11 @ 01:59AM BY MARNIE REID

Tweet 2 Recommend Send Be the first of your friends to recommend this.

Colin MacPherson stars in the movie The Caretaker. Picture: PAUL LOUGHNAN N19SB21

COLIN MacPherson has no qualms about working alongside vampires.

After all, when you are one of the leads in a horror movie, it is to be expected.

The Brighton East resident plays a character called Lester in Australian movie The Caretaker.

It is a film about a plague that has taken over the world, which turns most people into vampires.

The story centres on a group of humans who make a deal with one vampire to keep their group alive.

The movie was filmed in Rutherglen last year.

MacPherson said the film's genre was undoubtedly horror, but there was humour as well.

"It's a quirky, funny vampire film with lots of action and its got an interesting story," he said.

"It's got a lot of Alfred Hitchcock in it. All gore and slash but a lot of humour", he said.

The Canadian-born actor has performed on stage, screen and film. He has appeared in many shows from City Homicide to Neighbours.

Details: (warning: graphic content) thecaretakerfilm.com

<http://www.wherelive.com.au>

All times AEST