Sexsquatch: The legend of Blood Stool Creek (2013).

Coming from SRS Cinema is this hilarious gore splattered comedy. If you think Troma movies are offensive, prepare yourself for something a whole lot worse!!

Joey's friends have realised he has spent far too much time trying to be the president of all of showbusiness, that he has neglected ever getting laid. His friends try to fix this by gathering for a party weekend, or as they put it, a 'get laid party' at Blood Stool Creek.

Unfortunately, they are joined by something bloodthirsty, intelligent, eloquent, covered in hair and horny as hell. And no, it isn't Ron Jeremy (as the DVD cover will attest).

This film is absolute comedy gold (for those of us with a sick sense of humour) and I enjoyed every single minute of it. The plot is completely ridiculous, the acting so over the top, but the movie is made with people who obviously love the genre, and this shines through every minute of the movie.

The Sexsquatch, whose name is Stinkfist, even speaks with an english accent, and definitely has some of the best lines in the movie, along with his crying of "Butthole". The dialogue had me howling with laughter, and I have never heard such a poetic use of foul language before.

Sexsquatch is the perfect movie to watch with a group of friends and a crate of your favourite alcoholic beverage and snacks. It really isn't a movie to be taken seriously at all, and is all the better for it.

The movie is also rather gory, but I feel the gore was played for laughs, and again, it really helps the movie along. You can also tell the cast were having an amazing time making this movie, and want to involve you in the fun and frolics of this amazing movie.
