

Iron Doors

(<http://www.dvdsnapshot.com/wp-content/uploads/2013/03/IronDoors.jpg>) Official Synopsis:

Locked in a vault, a young investment banker faces a slow death from starvation. Who kidnapped him and why? How can he escape the concrete walls and massive iron door that confine him? His journey of self discovery has only just began and his fight for survival will teach him values he previously thought impossible.

Our Take:

Very few of the single person/small group trapped alone films hold my attention. I liked 127 Hours, didn't like Cast Away. I thought Buried was ok. Iron Doors did nada for me. At first I was thinking it was headed to a Saw type film, but then it just kept going with one guy for a while before they finally added someone else and by that point I simply didn't care.

The worst part is, the audio didn't seem to match up with the video. I'm thinking it was dubbed in English and that totally took me out of it too. You had an annoying character and technical issues and yawn, is it over yet? James Franco was great and I was glued to the Danny Boyle film. Whoever this guy was kinda was bad and I really didn't care if he lived or died and didn't quite get why he was there in the first place.

Conclusion:

Iron Doors will probably have some fans, but don't count me as one of them. I didn't find it clever or psychologically sophisticated like the back of the DVD box said. In fact...

I WAS DONE WITH IT IN 10 MINUTES!
