

- Home
- News
- Articles
- Reviews
- Blog
- Issues
- About
- Activism
- Contact

Navigate to...

Home » Album reviews, Reviews, Vi

Kut U Up: Worse Than Wolves

By John B. Moore
September 2, 2013 – 12:20 pm

0 Comments | 67 views

Kut U Up

Worse Than Wolves
(Aggronautix)

After more than a decade of new material, Kut U Up has finally released their second studio album, but the time away has done wonders for the San Diego-based indie punk rock band.

Worse Than Wolves, however, is frustratingly short with only six tracks. As a result there is little fat on this one, with each song just as solid as the next, earning its spot on the album. There is also a little more melody in these songs, but the rawness that makes up the core of their sound is still there. It was that rawness that made them stick out on the Pop Disaster Tour with Green Day and Blink 182, giving the tour a shot of badly-needed punk rock credibility.

The band, last seen by most in the music documentary “Riding in Vans With Boys” (chronicling that tour), never actually called it quits. In fact, they spent the last 10 years playing shows here and there. Apparently, it just took them a very, very long time to find their way back into the studio.

Related Posts:

Big Dipper: Crashes on the Platinum Planet Big Dipper Crashes on the Platinum Planet (Almost Ready) There was a point in time when if your favorite band called it quits, ... Turbonegro Announce Live From The House Of Vans 7":... Turbonegro, the world's biggest underground rock-n-roll band, in connection with Vans will release a new 7" in time for their ... Transplants: In A Warzone Transplants In A Warzone (Epitaph) It took seven years for the Transplants – the side project for Rancid’s Tim Armstrong, Blink 182’s Travis ...