Indie Director (2013/Grimoire/MVD DVD)

Picture: D Sound: D Extras: D Main Program: C-

Bill Zebub [this is really his name???] is an indie director who is out to make his next big hit, by making sex/rape horror movies. That people will watch any horror as long as there is naked girls, tits and sex, but suddenly he is dumped by the company and out of cash. He travels between his various friend's houses and horror conventions trying to pitch his movies and find some funding, but the more he fails the more he becomes determined that he will succeed on his next try in Indie Director (2013).

Bill is indie as in he is totally independent, he is director, cast, and crew all rolled into one (thus saving money). He has an (unbelievably) hot girlfriend and is convinced he is the next George Lucas of indie horror films. His formula for a successful indie horror film is sex, rape and naked girls (with himself as the main character). In his films, Bill gets to act/touch/make out 'rape scenes' with naked girls for free (because his film will make them movie stars) and he convinced himself he not cheating on his girlfriend (per se). All the mean while he is trying to get people and companies to give him money with free advertisement, that it is an investment and they will make a hundred times more in return.

This film is the worst funny horror movie about making horror movies. The main character basically want to make horror movies (which he says isn't porn), get paid grants, and royalties and grope/ make out with actresses for free. All the while he competes with his friend who also an indie director on who's movie will succeed first, it is painful to watch as strokes his own ego (and other things), he torments himself and then try to convince the girls to get naked and making out with him is all part of the script (But if you ARE watching this film, we all KNOW it's not for the story or plot, but for the naked girls). The only real saving grace (if it is at all) is that it shows how NOT to make a horror movie.

The picture is really bad, sound as rough and intolerable and there are no extras.
