Who says you have to blow $250 million to have a blockbuster of a movie ? Scorsese, Kubrick, Spielberg....all of the aforementioned should take a good hard look at "Indie Director". the informational mockumentary from veteran micro-budget director Bill Zebub, whose previous titles such as "ZombieChrist" & "Antfarm Dickhole" should be enough to inspire the utmost of creative brainpanning in every aspiring filmmaker.

"Indie Director" acts in a twofold aspect - 1: we get a front seat to a man's ideas that are ripe with confrontation - he won't conform to the norm, and defies all logic when it pertains to the median in an industry that demands freshness in imported idealogy. 2: - We also witness a fantastic struggle in Bill's inner psyche when one of his stunted-allocated movies ends up falling into the wrong genre (PORN !), and he forges another photoplay, unbeknownst to him that he's now incriminated the art that has caused him so much happiness & frustration over his career..... sounds like an Oscar-winner, huh ?

All wordiness aside, the movie is just 2 hrs of straight-up fun & informative direction for those who may choose a career as a behind-the-scenes player in the relentless & taxing world of movie directing, especially when on a minuscule budget, and forced to defend yourself & your craft against stonewalled movie execs at every turn. Bill's demeanor ranges from raging, rambling psychotic to cool & calm.....psychotic...but don't let that throw you for a loop - watching him rage on camera about everything from boobs to budgets is CLASSIC..and did I mention there are NUMEROUS instances of both ? There are numerous scenes of scantily-clad femmes plying their artistry to undraped excess.....yeah, there is ALOT of skin in this movie.

Overall, this movie can be used as an excellent guidance tool for the aspiring director, and a cautionary tale for those who may be on the fence about whether or not to throw hard-earned dough into an independent film that will more than likely face an uphill battle - but we all can learn a lesson from Bill Zebub, not only in movie making, but in all aspects - and that is question EVERYTHING, and don't settle until you've got it EXACTLY the way you want it...and that's why "Indie Director" is a recommended watch - check it out and learn something !
