Royal Earle Thompson owns a dairy farm in southern Texas during the late 1890s. His farm is fairly unproductive, due in part to Thompson's laziness and distaste for most of the required labor on a farm. Thompson lives with his wife, Ellie, and two small sons, and while Ellie is continually ill, she does her best to perform her domestic duties around the farm. One day, Olaf Helton presents himself at the farm and the taciturn Swede asks Farmer Thompson for a job and is hired on the spot. Helton proves to be an invaluable asset and after nine years pass, the dairy farm is thriving, thanks to Helton's incomparable work ethic. One day, an offensive and irritating stranger named Homer T. Hatch shows up at the farm, saying he is there to "locate" Helton. Thompson takes an immediate dislike to Helton due to his grating banter and subtle insults. Hatch eventually reveals he is a bounty hunter, and Helton is an escaped mental patient. Thompson has a vision of Hatch driving a knife blade into Helton's stomach, and rushes to Helton's defense, striking Hatch with an axe blade and killing him. Meanwhile, Helton flees. After a perfunctory trial, Thompson is acquitted on the ground of self-defense/defense of another but Thompson continues to relive the killing, endlessly reviewing possible options, other paths he could have taken. Worse, though he is legally "not guilty," the community regards him as not innocent, and fears that he has become an outcast. In a climactic scene at home, Thompson realizes that even his wife is afraid of him and that their now nearly grown sons no longer trust him. Thompson writes a note of explanation, how he never meant to kill Hatch. Thompson puts no blame on Helton, observing that had Hatch come hunting him instead of Helton, his friend would have done the same for him.

NAACP PUT TRAVEL ADVISORY ON FLORIDA

The NAACP has issued a travel advisory on the State of Florida in response to Governor DeSantis' attempts "to erase black history and to restrict diversity, equity, and inclusion." NAACP President and CEO Derrick Johnson stated "Under the leadership of Governor DeSantis the state of Florida has become hostile to black Americans and in direct conflict with those democratic ideals that our union was founded upon."

Basically, he is saying look out if you come visit Florida, you may not go back home alive. What fearmongering, huh? Derrick Johnson calls Tampa Bay home and the NAACP

Chairman of the Board Leon Russell also lives there. When will these two begin calling a moving company and getting the heck out of Florida. What hypocrisy, eh?

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO ...

Singer Bob Dylan turned 82 years old on Wednesday, May 24. Happy birthday and keep on singing. Henry Kissinger turned 100 years old Saturday, May 27, and Lisa Cappuccio had her birthday last week, too. Next year will be a big birthday for her. Maybe I should start now planning a big birthday party for her maybe at Kelley's Square Pub. Where would East Boston be without her?

TARGET GONE WOKE FOR SUMMER BEACH TIME

Target is just the latest big box company to have fallen for all this DEI madness. They are now advertising new summer wear as they are now marketing a new line of female swimsuits for men. I kid you not. We all know that men carry some extra baggage down below and the new swimsuits come with extra-large briefs for comfort. You can't make this stuff up even if you wanted to.

I see Bud Light in their future, how about you?

GOOD COUNTRY MUSIC WITH "LITTLE TEXAS" CD

A good friend handed me a 'Little Texas' country music CD album titled Kick a Little, but I was kicking a lot while driving over to Roberto's Pastry in Revere. I had never heard of this band, but their music is out of this world. It's a 10-track CD, but track 4 "Southern Grace" is the best country I've heard in years. Check it out.

REDEDICATING

On Saturday, May 20, a North End soldier killed in action during WWI was remembered by family members and local officials gathered for a rededication of a "Hero Square" next to the Saunders Castle at Park Plaza.
