

STONE ROSES – Made Of Stone DVD: For many seeing the Stone Roses reform after a 16 year break was an unreal experience. The Stone Roses have won a lot of hearts over their musical history and with their self titled debut album being in many music critics top 100 albums ever released it's fair to say that the band have cult status. Being on that level of legendary status would some one ever release a film about the band? Well in comes Shane Meadows the director for 'This Is England' movie and starts the ball rolling. What a great movie it is too! With Shane's unique directing skills he captures the band at work and in their everyday lives while they rehearsed for their much-anticipated reunion shows at Manchester's 'Heaton Park' in front of 220,000 adoring fans. Brilliant throughout and shows what top lads the Roses are. I wish I'd gone to see this at the cinema now but this DVD is a close second best. 9/10
